City manager plan endorsed Management review cites benefits of a new structure

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

The Granite City Council should entirely restructure the city's government, a professional study says.

The Melville management review of city operations recommends adoption of a city manager form of government — requiring the employment of a full-time professional administrator to serve as the city's chief administrative officer and strengthening the executive branch.

Once the new system — which would require voter approval for adoption — is implemented, the city's four elected executive offices (mayor, clerk, treasurer and street superintendent) should be completely overhauled, the study says.

The study was commissioned by the City Council and a group of city business leaders who shared in the cost of the review. It was delivered Wednesday to Mayor Ron Selph and the business leaders.

"The most imposing obstacle to the city's ability to change course and preserve its future is its ineffective and antiquated governance structure. The city's executive branch, with four independently elected officials, is hopelessly fragmented," the study states.

Illinois law provides for three basic forms of municipal government — "aldermanic-city," "trustee-village," and "commission" with several variations, including a city manager form.

Under the state constitution, a home rule city such as Granite City may change its form of government by referendum and dictate selection and terms of officeholders.

The current aldermanic-city form provides for an elected mayor, clerk and treasurer (who also serve the township), and aldermen elected by wards (who also serve as the town board).

Granite City also utilizes an elected street superintendent. That position was created by ordinance.

The city's four elected executive branch officials cost the taxpayers $223,000 in salary and benefits last year, according to the study.

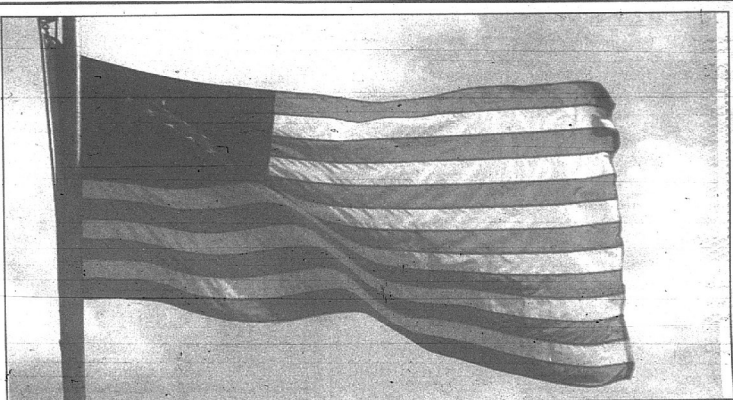

Under the current system, the mayor has the power to oversee the day-to-day operations of the city through his department heads, fill about 200 jobs, review all records, enforce laws, veto ordinances, (See STORY, Page 8A)

The parade will be held at 10 a.m. Monday along Edison Avenue between Niedringhaus and 18th streets. The lineup starts at 8 a.m.

The grand marshal for the parade will be Illinois Supreme Court Justice Moses Harrison. The parade is sponsored by the Tri-City Chapter of Greater Madison County Federation of Labor.

The Union Local 16 picnic will begin at noon Monday at the softball field in Wilson Park. There will be food, drinks, music, games and rides for the kids.

Madison 'jungles' meet their match

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Chainsaws are destroying the jungles of Madison, but it is unlikely anyone will start a fund drive to save them.

"The 'jungles' that have grown up in vacant lots and alleys in the city are being cleaned by a Swap Team from the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

The Swap program sends teams made up of people working off fines and sentences for minor violations to help area government bodies with special projects.

In Madison, the team is part of an effort to clean trash, weeds and overgrown trees from lots and alleys throughout the city.

"The Swap team has been a tremendous thing — these are some hard-working guys," said Madison Mayor John Bellico. "Sheriff Bob Churchich needs to be commended for this program and I think States Attorney Bill Haine and our judges need to realize what a wonderful thing Bob Churchich is doing and help expand the program."

In the first week and a half the Swap team has been in Madison it has cleaned large areas on Sixth Street and Market Street and has begun to work at Third Street and work its way down State Street.

"They've burned up one chainsaw blade — we bought them a new one — and we supply them with gas," Bellico said. "And I've been buying them sodas for their breaks. Other than that, it hasn't cost us anything and you can't believe the work they've done."

"I wish we'd taken pictures before they started — these were real jungles. Now you wouldn't recognize the places they've been."

Bellico said the city's street department has started removing trash from alleys and this week he hopes to be able to have crews start at Collinsville Avenue on the south end of town begin working their way north.

"Not all of the alleys are bad — we had a lot of residents who took care of the alleys themselves," Bellico said. "But with the lay-offs (of four street department employees) and people out of sick leave, we fell way behind and got a backlog. Some of the alleys are unbelievable."

Now, with all of the street department workers recalled and with the help of the Swap team,

Bellico said he hopes to have the entire city cleaned up by the end of September.

"Once we get back to where we should be, we will be able to resume our regular pickups," Bellico said. "Then we should be able to keep the alleys in good shape and everybody will be happy."

Bellico said he hopes to have the entire city cleaned up by the end of September.

UW goal is $1,085,000

A United Way campaign goal of $1,085,000 has been announced by Jerry Bischoff, manager of Nestle Beverage Co. and general chairman of the 1993 Tri-Cities Area United Way campaign.

The fall fund drive, which helps support 23 local health and human care agencies, officially began Thursday with a kickoff meeting at the AMVETS Hall in Madison.

At the kick-off, Bischoff introduced his four volunteer team leaders: Thomas Colbourn, Rosemarie Brown, Ron Payton, and Calvin Cheatham Jr.

Colbourn is the Granite City plant manager of the Capri Sun Inc., which produces 12 flavors of Capri Sun all-natural juice drinks.

The plant also manufactures Mr. Freeze freezer pops and Kool Aid Brand Kool Bursts.

Colbourn's volunteer activities include chairing the Tri-Cities Area United Way priorities and planning committee and serving on the boards of the local United Way, the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, and the Southwestern-Illinois leadership council.

He is a vice president of the Granite City Ambassador's Club and a member of Granite City Rotary Club.

Colbourn and his wife, Kay, have one daughter, Carey.

Brown is president of Van Arch & Associates, a 10-year-old public (See GOAL, Page 2A)

Madison City Council adopted a tax levy of $285,110, an increase of $11,323 over last year. The reason for the increase is a $31,000 levy for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, which is up by $11,000.

Shell Oil plan for controlling emissions meets no opposition

WOOD RIVER — A public hearing on Shell Oil Co.'s permit application for controlling sulfur dioxide emissions drew a full house, but not a single negative comment.

About 100 people packed the hearing at Wood River City Hall Wednesday, but left all comments to elected officials and Shell employees.

"We prefer to mail in our comments and evidence," said one woman who asked not to be identified. The hearing was public, she said, but filled with Shell people.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will take written comments and supporting data until Sept. 15 before making a final decision. Comments may be addressed to John Williams, IEPA, 2200 Churchill Road, PO Box 19276, Springfield, IL 62794-9276.

Williams, the hearing officer, said the new permit requires Shell to keep specific records and report sulfur dioxide emissions from fuel combustion equipment and a sulfur recovery system at its Wood River Manufacturing Complex. The company has been operating under the same guidelines six years, he said.

"Shell has reduced sulfur dioxide emissions by 50 percent down to 12,000 tons a year since the new permit was first proposed in 1986," IEPA Permit Engineer Dan Punzak said.

Federal and state reviews of the sulfur limits using computer modeling and air sampling show the company meets federal clean air standards, authorities said.

Rules to ensure those standards have been written into the permit and will be enforced by both federal and state environmental agencies, IEPA authorities said. The new permit will not require further reduction of sulfur releases and cannot prevent mishaps like a fire that spewed 1,600 gallons of unprocessed motor oil and 200 pounds of hydrogen sulfide over South Roxana in May, officials said.

Controlling spills and fires is a separate problem, IEPA regional air manager John Justice said.

"Separate but ongoing negotiations between the agency and the company will address those situations," he said.

South Roxana Mayor Danny Wilcox said Shell has had problems in the past but seems to be on top of them. He favored granting the permit.

Wilcox was joined in his support by Roxana Mayor Jim Lloyd, Hartford Mayor Ron Goode, Roxana school officials and Shell employees.

A copy of the permit application project summary and draft permit are available for inspection at the mayor's office at 400 S. Central Ave. in Roxana and at the IEPA regional office at 2099 Mail St. in Collinsville.

Despite flood, apple growers doing well

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Apple season kicks off in earnest this weekend, and two local orchards say their crops were not harmed by the Flood of '93.

"It's going to be a bumper crop," said Cindy Iberg, a manager at Mills Apple Farm in Marine.

In fact, owner Jerry Mills said large amounts of rain this summer actually benefited area growers; there was no summer drought to slow the growth of the fruit.

Iberg said picking started last weekend for Jonathan, Empire, Royal Gala and Ozark Gold apples at Mills. Those will be followed by 11 other varieties ripening through September and October, ending with Granny Smiths in mid-October.

The picking season begins Friday at Eckert Orchards in Belleville, Millstadt and Grafton, Judy Eckert said. Eckert's is offering Jonathans only until about mid-September. The Jonathans will be followed by Golden Delicious and Red Delicious, she said.

"I think everything's looking pretty good," Eckert said. "It's a crop. It's not a short crop."

Eckert called Jonathans a good apple for eating plain or for cooking. They are slightly tart and crisp, she said.

Iberg said Royal Galas are a sweet apple.

Both Mills and Eckert

Orchards offer weekend events during the fall picking season.

Marquette Center is back in operation

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Department of Corrections Pere Marquette Youth Center is back in operation at Grafton after being driven out by floodwater.

Inspections by the department and the state Capital Development Board found no significant damage to the buildings off the Great River Road west of Grafton and next to Pere Marquette State Park.

The setting of the buildings stayed off any real harm, said camp superintendent Gary McHugh. They are back from the river quite a distance and on higher ground.

"We fared very, very well," McHugh said. The only losses were some trees and grass and a hot water heater.

The only building affected by the water was the Administration Building, which had about 3 to 4 feet of seepage in the basement.

The boiler there was saved because a maintenance man and security personnel "kept jacking it up as the water came in, and there never was any damage."

McHugh said maintenance and security

"We fared very, very well. (The boiler was saved by workers who) kept jacking it up as the water came in, and there never was any damage."

staff were ferried in during the flood by an Illinois Department of Conservation boat after the youths and the rest of the staff were moved July 8 to the Alton Mental Health and Developmental Center.

He had high praise for the administration of the Alton center. "By accommodating our operation, they really helped us a lot. It kept a normal routine for the kids and staff."

A strict separation of the juveniles and the Alton center patients was kept, McHugh said.

The juveniles used an empty residential building, and the normal educational programs continued without interruption. The youths were also allowed to use the gymnasium for recreation.

Forty-six youths were moved to Alton after water swept over both the Great River Road and a back access road to the Grafton facility.

New admissions were not permitted, and by the time the operation moved back to Grafton recently, only 25 youths were left because of paroles or completion of sentences.

McHugh said the population will gradually be increased again. He said it typically ranges from 44 to 60.

At least two youth center staffers have had homes destroyed in the flood and six others have undetermined water damage.

Second dose of measles vaccine is now required

SPRINGFIELD — The state Health Department is reminding parents that all children starting schools this fall must be able to show proof of a second dose of measles vaccine.

A law phased in this year requires all children entering elementary and secondary schools for the first time to provide proof of two shots of measles vaccine, with the first dose at age 12 months or later and the second dose at least one month after the first. Alternatively, evidence of a physician-diagnosed case of measles or laboratory evidence of immunity can be presented.

"Studies have shown that one dose of the measles vaccine does not provide the best protection. The best protection comes with a second dose of the vaccine," state health director Dr. John Lumpkin said.

State law also requires proof of three or more doses of polio vaccine, with the last one on or after the fourth birthday.

Other immunization requirements include:

* Four or more doses of tetanus and whooping cough vaccine.

* Vaccination for mumps or a doctor's statement that the child already had the disease.

* Vaccination for rubella.

St. Clair County officials kick off campaign for MetroLink tax

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

St. Clair County voters who want MetroLink extended to Scott Air Force Base have to go to the polls in November and support a half-cent sales tax or the project may never happen.

That was the message area officials "pushed at Fischer's Restaurant in Belleville when they kicked off the campaign to support the tax late last month.

U.S. Rep. Jerry F. Costello, D-Belleville, said he was "in front of the line at the window" for federal funding for Phase II of the project, but would have to move aside if local matching monies are not approved.

"We have to get our act together for Phase II. If we get out of line this year, it will be very, very difficult to get back in," he said. "We can only stay in line if we get the sales tax."

MetroLink is the only system in the country for which the federal government has appropriated money for Phase II when Phase I has not even been completed, Costello said.

In five years, Costello has earned support for $8.5 million in appropriations from federal officials on the project. But, he said, they want to find out if the project has local backing.

County Board Chairman John Baricvie urged elected officials and Metro East leaders to support the measure or face a system with limited benefits.

"Scott Joint Use and light rail are interconnected," he said. "They should not be separated. Do we want to be at the end of the line or in the center of the funding."

Belleville Mayor Roger Cook said he supports the system and a tax, but was not sure he could justify it to Belleville voters when the city may not get a station.

"We're rolling the dice on Belleville's economic future when developments come along the route," he said. "If we lost the opportunity to get it (route) in the Belleville/Swansea corridor, how can I get the voters' support?"

But other officials said they would have no problem justifying the tax. Regardless of which community gets a station, the project has regional benefits.

M.G. Jones, executive director of the Fairview Heights Chamber of Commerce, said leaders should stop thinking of each community as a separate entity and work together for the region.

Johnny Scott, president of the East St. Louis branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said communities often think only about "what's in it for me," but everyone will benefit if light rail is extended.

"We're too localized in our mindset. We need to look at the spinoffs from light rail," he said. "It's going to cost us a little money, but we have to look at the big picture. If we don't work together, we'll die or suffer one by one."

Baricvie said a recent study showed that 55 percent of those polled would support and pay for the light rail extension.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello addresses a nurse managers at a meeting at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Costello discusses health issues

Nurse managers from three area hospitals and local elected officials met with U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City recently to discuss health care reform, new legislation and reimbursement issues.

"I have been interested in having Congressman Costello meet with members of Region 4 of the Illinois Council of Nurse Managers, of which I am president," said Kathleen Gauert, SEMC's director of Critical Care.

"Because he sits on the budget committee, he was unable to get away while Congress was in session, so he contacted me after the budget was passed and volunteered to meet with us at SEMC."

Nurse managers from SEMC and two other hospitals — Anderson Hospital in Maryville and St. Anthony's Medical Center in Alton — took part in the discussion. Also participating were County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer and Granite City Mayor Ron Selph.

Costello helped the group understand ways to give and get feedback from legislators about important issues.

"We felt very comfortable sharing our concerns about health care with him," Gauert said.

"He showed us he is interested in Granite City and Southwestern Illinois. He let us know he was accessible to health care professionals in this area."

"We shared with him the day-to-day issues of health care. We discussed utilization, reimbursement and educated him about the shortage of physical therapists in this area. In return, he shared directions health care may be taking," she said.

Many options for financing college education

This is the first in a series of articles about funding college education.

If you are a parent, you know about the spiraling costs of college education. Headlines constantly remind us that they increase at about eight to nine percent annually, far outstripping the consumer price index, the basic measure of everyday purchasing power. In the last decade alone, tuition at most colleges and universities has doubled. State schools have also kept pace with this upward trend in general.

It is not unusual to find that four years of college at a private school will cost more than $50,000, exclusive of the student's personal expenses beyond room and board. Only your home purchase is likely to exceed that investment. The difference is you can finance your home for 30 years. Educational costs generally get paid in four. On the other hand, if parents plan well, they may have as many as 18 years to prepare for those college expenses. Indeed, advance preparation time is one's greatest asset in building a college fund.

Brian Mulhall

To compound the problem, government support of higher education continues to shrink, despite rhetoric to the contrary. Current tax law eliminates deductibility of consumer loan interest, curtails use of "kiddie trusts," and defines certain financial aid grants as taxable income. Direct government contribution to higher education has been cut back, which tends to reduce a school's pool of financial aid.

All of that said, however, many financial options do exist. Which will work best for you depends upon your particular situation and the time available before your child enters college. Is college even worth the cost? Unequivocally, yes! The average college graduate can now expect to earn $2 million over a lifetime, while the typical high school graduate will earn about $1.4 million. That difference of $600,000 represents a return of about 10 times the cost of that extra four years of school. Few investments can promise that kind of payback.

Of course, many intangibles also accrue from a college education. Career opportunities expand. Broadened awareness, increased cultural and social awareness, increased cultural and social experiences, challenging new ideas, expanded personal relationships — all will enhance a child's life.

Beyond simple economics, a college education is something most parents want to provide for their children. If there is a single thing parents can do to successfully launch their son or daughter on the road to life, this is it. These articles over the next few weeks will cover the pros and cons of various financial options.

Joins sports medicine staff

Jim Jesse has joined the staff of the St. Elizabeth Health Services Sports Medicine Program as an athletic trainer. Jesse, a resident of Collinsville, received a bachelor of science degree from Culver-Stockton University in Canton, Mo. He served his internship in the SEHS Sports Medicine Program last December and joined the staff upon graduation.

"I enjoy working with Dan (Stephens), certified athletic trainer and program coordinator, and I like the goals he has set for the program," Jesse said. "Plus, I will be working close to home."

Jesse said that, since most of his training in school was preventive medicine like taping, he is looking forward to the planning, marketing and paperwork he will have on the job.

"I'm eager to build on the basis I received in school," he said. "I was more interested in just athletic training, but now I'm becoming more rehab oriented."

"I hope to eventually go back to school for physical therapy training."

58 regions. Each of the 58 winning organizations will receive $500 that may be used as a charitable donation or toward attending a two-day management and leadership conference for non-profit organizations to be held in Washington, D.C., Nov. 8 and 9.

The conference, titled "Innovation, Quality and Productivity, Managing for Results," is sponsored by the Conference Board and by the Peter F. Drucker Foundation for non-profit management.

From the 58 finalists, four grand winners will be selected. Each winning organization will receive $5,000 and a two-day, all-expense-paid trip for two of its members to attend the management and leadership conference for non-profit organizations.

The contest is open to all organizations with a 501(c)(3) designation. Application forms for the Edward D. Jones & Co. award for non-profit innovation and excellence are available at the Edward D. Jones & Co. office. Entries must be submitted no later than Friday, Sept. 10.

Each non-profit organization that submits a contest application will receive a free copy of

Peter F. Drucker's book, "Managing the Non-Profit Organization."

We feel this selection is particularly appropriate because Drucker is known as the father of modern management," Sheldon said. "And because the Drucker Foundation is dedicated to serving non-profit groups."

Edward D. Jones & Co. has built its business by locating one-broker offices in small communities and metropolitan areas. Founded in 1871, Jones has become the largest financial services firm in the nation in terms of retail offices with more than 2,900 offices in 48 states, including municipal and government bonds, certificates of deposit, mutual funds and individual stocks.

Frank's Experts Discuss Chrysanthemums

Long-Time Garden Favorite

FRANK'S

NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

Chrysanthemums are a tough act to follow. They're always the center-stage attraction in any fall garden. Their brilliance brings the gardening season to a close like no other flower.

In the interest of easier reading and space-saving, how about if we call them "mums" the rest of the way?

The new hybrid varieties of today are noted for both early bloom and winter hardiness. Therefore, the season of bloom has been significantly increased. It's now possible to enjoy these beauties not only in the St. Louis area, but in other regions much farther north.

The mum is a large genus of annual and perennial herbs belonging to the Asteraceae (Aster) family. Some species, such as pyrethrum and shasta daisy, bear ornamental flowers even during the summer months. The most famous of all, though, is the garden mum, is the showiest of all fall blossoms. Its flowers are pleasantly muscled, and are available in many sizes.

Mums grow best in a soil with a pH that is just below the neutral point, and lime should be applied if the soil has a tendency to be acid.

A light, rich, well-drained soil is ideal. Mums have hearty appetites and require plenty of plant food in order to attain maximum development. Liberal quantities of manure or compost should be added to the flower bed before planting.

In sunny, well-drained locations, individual specimens set at 2-foot intervals become masses of bloom when little else remains, since mums are late-season bloomers and are able to withstand light frosts.

Taller varieties can enhance garden borders quite well, while the low growers are fine as edging in urns and tubs, rock gardens, or foundation plantings next to evergreens.

Mums should be pinched 2 or 3 times from the time they are 6" tall in spring through early to mid July. This creates a much fuller plant with many more buds and blooms. If you wait until later to pinch, the flowering will be delayed until later in the fall.

Most taller mums are superb for cutting. The flowers will last two to three weeks in water, but the leaves should be removed from the submerged portion of the stem. Mums are also excellent when arranged with fall foliage and berried branches.

Thousands of mum cultivars have been developed, and classification of the many types is based mainly on flower form and growth habit.

Cushion type: The dwarf hardy spreading type. Most common garden type. Petals are regularly or irregularly reflexed. The flowers are an inch and a half to several inches across, with the petals varying in length.

Pompon type: The flowers are usually spherical, not over 4 inches across. Some have curved petals in the center of the flower head.

Spoon type: The disk florets (those that form the central "eye") are rather flat, while the ray florets (those that form the "petals") are regularly arranged and spoon-shaped. Single and Daisy-flowered types: The disk florets form a daisylike "eye" in the center, while the ray or petal-like florets are arranged in not more than five rows.

Mums aren't immune. Diseases can strike, especially on crowded or starved plants. A fungicidal spray or dust prevents spread of brown blotches, and diseased leaves should be removed. The best way to prevent mildew is to plant in uncrowded conditions with good air circulation and adequate sunlight.

Dominican Sisters celebrate 100 years of service

The Dominican Sisters of Springfield, Ill., are celebrating 100 years of service from their mother house in Springfield.

The community was actually established in Jacksonville, Ill., in 1873, but when the young community outgrew its home there, they moved, on June 9, 1883, into a new mother house on what was the western edge of Springfield.

Over a 100-year span, the 17 acres they purchased with the help of Jacksonville philanthropist Charles Rott has sprouted an impressive collection of buildings that are now headquarters for 358 religious women who serve in 11 archdioceses and dioceses, including the Springfield diocese. The sisters served locally at the former St. Joseph and Sacred Heart Grade School in Granite City.

Much about the Catholic church and the way religious life is lived has changed since the day 40 Jacksonville Dominicans became Springfield Dominicans. They probably couldn't have guessed that their sisters, 100 years down the line, would be preaching retreats, administering parishes without priests or running huge health care facilities. They would not have anticipated the growth of the community to more than 500 people in the 1980s, or the current theological climate that allows for discussion of the leadership roles of women religious in the church.

The religious community's ancestors in faith would, however, understand what prompts the current Springfield Dominicans' sense of purpose and mission: the desire to preach the gospel among God's people, whatever the need might be.

In 1873 it was education. Out of economic necessity, many of the Irish immigrants who arrived in Jacksonville with the railroad also sent their children to work in the knitting mill, in the fields, or on the tracks. Gathering 400 children from the ages of five to 16 and organizing them in a four-room school house was the first mission of the new community. Education has been, and continues to be, a large part of the work of the modern Dominican community, but is not the only mission.

In addition to teaching, the current band of Dominican Sisters also serve as administrators of parishes, directors of religious education, liturgists and musicians, pastoral care workers and health care providers.

They serve in the archdioceses of Chicago, St. Paul-Minneapolis and Lima, Peru. They serve in the dioceses of Duluth, Minn.; Baton Rouge, La.; Jackson, Miss.; Little Rock, Ark.; and in the Illinois' dioceses of Joliet, Peoria, Rockford and Springfield.

Women who are interested in more information about joining the Springfield Dominicans in their mission to preach the gospel are invited to contact Sister Mary Gael Daley, OP, 1237 West Monroe St., Springfield, IL 62794. Telephone number is (217) 629-8471.

Champion presented several forms to the committee chairmen. She showed a video entitled, "Volunteers," a documentary on VFW ladies auxiliaries.

Champion remarked on the improvement of the meetings since last year. She also requested that the group write news articles to spell out VFW, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The meeting was attended by the following: Cindy Stratton, Christine Green, Patsy Hartman, Cherrie Hays, Mary Ann Dollar, Toni Cromer, Mable Cochran, Marjorie Brannen, Dorothy Ford and Betty Signaio.

Send school shift to work on breakfast of adaptable mix

By Mary Schroepfer

When my four-year-old goes to preschool this fall, there will be a warm breakfast as a regular send-off. Some mornings I rely on pancakes, waffles, muffins or coffeecake prepared quickly from a homemade baking mix for just pennies a serving.

Making my own baking mix and storing it for later use yields greater savings and convenience than buying ready-made mix. Ready-to-eat bakery items like muffins, cake, biscuits and cookies are as much as 10 times more expensive than a home-made version.

Missouri Mix is a basic baking mix developed by the University of Missouri for home use. To get a copy of Missouri Mix recipes besides those given here, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for: University of Missouri Extension, P.O. Box 71, Union, Mo. 63084.

The mix allows flexibility. For instance, replacing all-purpose flour with whole wheat flour increases fiber and nutrient content. A blend of half all-purpose and half whole wheat flour works well in muffins, pancakes and waffles. Sodium-conscious consumers can omit salt completely.

To minimize costs, buy generic or house brands of sugar, flour, dry milk and shortening. Compare unit prices and package sizes carefully, because package sizes are shrinking. A standard 5-pound bag of sugar has shrunk to 4 pounds in some brands.

Baking mixes also can be substituted in favorite recipes when time is at a premium. Use 1½ cups Missouri Mix for each cup flour in a recipe. Also leave out the leavening, salt and fat because they already are mixed in.

A basic mix is handy for quick muffins, gingerbread and even cookies. For something special, a coffeecake is quick, tasty and economical. To save time, the topping can be prepared the night before and stored in the refrigerator. The cake, mixed in only 25 strokes, is fresh from the oven by the time everyone is up and dressed. Serve with a glass of milk and orange "smiles" to greet everyone.

Makes 11 cups mix.

Cinnamon-apple coffeecake

2 cups Basic Mix
1 egg
½ cup water

Apple-Cinnamon Topping

Preheat oven to 375°. Grease 8-inch square pan. Stir sugar into mix. Beat egg. Add to water. Add egg mixture to mix ingredients. Stir about 25 strokes until ingredients are well mixed, avoiding overmixing. Spread half the batter in prepared pan. Sprinkle evenly with half the topping. Spread remaining batter to edge of pan. Sprinkle with rest of topping. Bake in preheated oven about 25 minutes.

Apple-Cinnamon Topping: Thoroughly blend ½ cup granulated or brown sugar, 2 tablespoons Missouri Mix and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Cut in 3 tablespoons margarine or butter, using 2 knives or a pastry blender. Add 1½ cups chopped apple and ½ cup raisins. For crusty cake, use as topping; for moister cake, spread mixture at bottom of pan and top with batter before baking.

Makes 9 servings; 289 calories, 11.3 g fat (35 percent calories from fat), 184 mg sodium and 66 g calcium each.

Home economist Mary Schroepfer is food and nutrition specialist for the University of Missouri Extension in Franklin County.

Experts explore TV's influence on children

By Jane Cosby
Correspondent

Television and children's viewing habits are getting a lot of attention lately. Several weeks ago, members of the television industry met with political leaders to discuss violent programming.

Television industry executives found themselves on the defensive side of what many people believe to be an indefensible position—that television programming is not a negative influence on our children.

Both the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association recently have issued official concerns about the effects on children of watching television.

Last year the American Psychological Association released the results of a five-year study on television's effects. The report warned parents about television's negative influences and cautioned them to control their children's viewing.

Both sides of the issue agree that television is a dominating and powerful influence in our society. More than 95 percent of all households have at least one television and most have two or more televisions, a videocassette recorder and cable channels.

By the time a child leaves elementary school he has seen 8,000 murders and more than 100,000 acts of violence. The average American child will spend more time watching television than he will in school.

But members of the television industry and child health experts do not agree on the negative influences of the programming. American children are watching. Just what are these negative influences? Child health experts have issued warnings to parents about the following aspects of television:

- Violence — It doesn't take an expert to notice that television programming has gotten considerably more violent than it was when it first started and when most of today's parents were growing up.

The debate over whether exposure to violence causes people to be violent has been going on for some time and will continue. In the meantime, though, parents must decide for themselves whether they feel their children will be harmed by being exposed to television violence. Most child health experts feel the effects of viewing violent programming has been well-documented and leads to increasing levels of physical aggressiveness and violence among children.

- Sex — Just as there is more violence on television today, there is more sex than in the past. Many child health experts feel overexposure to sexually stimulating material can cause children to be physiologically aroused and have a deforming effect on normal sexual development.

- Stereotyping — Women, children and elderly people are often portrayed on television in negative and stereotyped ways. If children are using television as a guide for what is normal, they are getting a distorted view of the world.

- Obesity — Watching television is a sedentary activity and seems to go hand in hand with eating junk food. Obesity and excessive television viewing are a direct link for many children at a time when physical fitness among our children is at an all-time low.

Antique Auto, Sports Car meet Sept. 11 in Springfield

The 1993 Secretary of State's Antique Auto and Sports Car Meet is coming soon.

The all-day show, which includes a flea market and swap meet, will be held Saturday, Sept. 11, at the State Fairgrounds in Springfield.

"The Antique Auto Meet provides a fun family outing for participants and spectators," said Secretary of State George H. Ryan.

"For the second year, our show will be near the WYNN/Valco Cruise for Charity to give car enthusiasts the opportunity to take part in both events."

The top Chevrolet car or truck at this year's meet will receive the special Marquis award, which represents a different automobile manufacturer each year. In previous years, the award was presented to the best Ford, Chrysler, Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Studebaker and Porsche.

An "Illinois State Champion" award will be given to the vehicle judged the best at the show by the Antique Auto and Sports Car Meet Committee. First, second and third place winners will receive awards in at least 40 classifications.

In addition, a group of individuals that has at least 10 similar cars may open its own class. The deadline for entry under the "10-car-rule" was Sept. 3.

Family fun runs Sept. 26

Horoscope

Sunday, Sept. 5
Mars with Jupiter encourages you to view life as a grand adventure. Every once in a while, it's good to break out of your usual routine for the sake of personal enjoyment. Entrepreneurs will find today's energy supporting their plans. The moon in Taurus helps keep financial matters in order. Overall, there is a nice balance of enthusiasm for both action and grounded perspective.
YOUR BIRTHDAY (Sept. 5) Every ending is actually a new beginning as the year unfolds. Expect peak events, a broader perspective on life and expanded romantic settings. October through December will show numerous transitional experiences leading to a fabulous start to 1994.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) High spirits have you soaring, and you should do something with your extravagant energy. Men, be the gallant warrior! Ladies, be the bewitching goddess! Your positive reaction to your partner is what makes love work.
Taurus (April 20-May 20) Healthful but stimulating activities will do wonders for your body and mind — life is too short to be spent in sedentary pursuits. By the end of the week, you will have made an important decision about your job.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21) Romance today has an air of exuberant wildness about it and a touch of refinement for contrast. Your creative ideas begin to blossom, perhaps as never before. Libra or Sagittarius is a good match for you.
CANCER (June 22-July 22) Being absent from home will create enthusiasm for returning later. Those of you who are ready to go out on your own will do well — it's time for you to become fully self-reliant. Indulge yourself without going totally overboard.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Life in the fast lane attracts you, and you know just how to handle it. Money isn't an issue now if you've managed your funds well in the past. Traveling can be a blast, even if only for a day. Reading is the Great Escape.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Allow yourself more time than usual for getting weekend projects done. You're full of energy and spirit of fun. Don't be surprised if you're in the mood to spend money, and spend big. The opposite sex has a way of turning up!
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're full of feathers and anticipation. You're more in demand socially, too, which you always seem to enjoy. A friend is a great source of information, including astrological info! One friendship seems to be in a gray area.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) You're dreaming of breaking out of yourself, and the usual round of activities won't do.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You have success among friends or groups and the enthusiasm to spark others to new heights. Plan your next grand adventure.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Exciting business possibilities exist, and you should jump at the chance to make them happen — perhaps in the area of marketing.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Trust your urge to get out into the world and explore. Self-help tapes can be great for building self-esteem. You do not lack the talent, only the know-how. Your money situation will improve, so stay on track in your career.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Find the time you need to tend your own garden, both figuratively and literally.

BAC Children's Series

promises songs, stories

Performers at Belleville Area College's fall Children's Series promise to delight children with silly songs about dinosaurs, entrance them with a classic telling of "Peter and the Wolf," thrill them with amazing stories and get them in the holiday spirit with a special version of "Puss in Boots."
The Children's Series, a set of four programs designed to entertain children ages 4 to 8 and their parents, is scheduled one month throughout the fall.
The shows include children's entertainer Dave Rudolph appearing Sept. 15; Young Audiences of St. Louis' "Peter and the Wolf," featuring The Whirlwinds and Blake Travis on Oct. 20; local storyteller Gail Long on Nov. 17; and "The Holiday Adventures of Puss 'n Boots," by the Imaginary Theatre Company of St. Louis, presented on Dec. 8.

All performances will be at 6:30 p.m. in the Belleville Campus Theater, 2500 Carlyle Road. Season tickets for the Children's Series are $10 each. All children must be accompanied by an adult. Seating is limited and orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.
This year's series is a strong blend of the arts and quality live entertainment," said David Paeth, college activities director.

For the second program, the Young Audiences of St. Louis present Peter and the Wolf, featuring The Whirlwinds with Blake Travis. The show is a retelling of Sergei Prokofiev's classic musical tale, with vocalist Travis as narrator. The Whirlwinds, who will be performing Dr. Leonard Ott's adaptation of the original orchestral score, include James Staley of flute, Jan Farkes on oboe, Elsie Parker playing clarinet, Cheryl Hoard on French horn and Donita Bauer playing bassoon.
For the third show in the series, storyteller Gail Long of O'Fallon will captivate children with her versions of fables such as "Little Red Riding Hood," "The Mad Pudding," "How the Lady Bug Got Her Spot" and "The Real Story of Humpty Dumpty."

For ticket information, call the College Activities office at 235-2700, extension 205, or BAC-5131, extension 205.
